services, convenience of the existing services, new developments taking place, operational problems of availability of path and platform at enroute stations, pattern of traffic, passing time of the train, nature of the train and additional costs involved in the stoppage of a train.

(b) to (d) The matter has been examined. Gurgaon is presently served by 33 number of trains which the adequately serving the traffic requirements. Besides, Gurgaon is well connected with Delhi by road services. On these considerations, the stoppage of 2413/2414 Delhi-Jaipur Express at Gurgaon has not ben found justified.
